

英文自我介绍

Good morning/afternoon, professors. I am ××× from ××× University. My hometown is Sichuan, Nanchong. Today, it's my great honor to stand here for your interview, and I will make efforts to show my personal best. Now let me briefly introduce myself to you.

During the past three years, I have enjoyed an unforgettable college life in ××× University. I obtained not only the fundamental knowledge of my specialty, but also many friends in life. Generally speaking, I am a studious student, especially when doing the thing I am interested in, I will try my best to finish it no matter how difficult it is. When I was a sophomore, I thought that English would be significant to my further study, so I learned it very hard. I am a person with great perseverance, because I always think that the achievements the Great men attain are from their diligence and perseverance, so I should learn how to work hard as the Greats to pursue a brighter future.

I hope I could have a better understanding in Analytical Chemistry by studying further. And here are so many remarkable professors, experts; they are all best examples for me. They will teach me not only how to study, but also how to be a better man.

Well, in my spare time, I like playing badminton, climbing and reading. While doing sports helps me keep fit physically, reading renders my mind more matured mentally. During vacations, I like to go traveling and I believe it can enhance my social knowledge and experiences.

For a long time, I have been dreaming to enter this renowned university and further my education here. If I could have the honor to study here, I believe my undergraduate education would be an invaluable asset in my academic life in × × × University. And I am ready to realize my dream.

Thank you very much for your time and attention!
